

CF310 MOBILIZATION METHODOLOGIES

INTRODUCTION

Through the course of Mobilization Methodologies, students will study the ins and outs of knowing God's word and then sharing that Good News with others. How do we equip God's people for the work of the ministry we are called to the great commission. Outward mobilization is the result of inward motivation. Everyone is motivated to do something. An important key in effective ministry is to motivate and mobilize God's people for the work of the ministry.

If a goal is to be achieved and a vision fulfilled, you must take action. If you work only with plans and programs, you have an organization. If you mobilize people, you have an organism and each person in the organism becomes part of the achievement of the vision.

Throughout the Biblical record, God worked His plan and accomplished His purposes through people who were mobilized for action. Scriptures reveal that mobilization is divinely ordained and implied by descriptive terms in the Biblical text. It is illustrated in the Old Testament and in the New Testament Church, and it is central to the command given to believers to fulfill the Great Commission.

In this course you will study the Biblical basis of mobilization. You will also learn the central truth of Biblical mobilization. It is the fact that such mobilization is not based on the recruitment of vast physical or financial resources. God does mighty things through just a few people who are mobilized to action and answer His call. We will also study the glory of God and its purposes, that you were created to glorify Him and have His glory reflected in your life and ministry.

Worship is one of the greatest Biblical principles of mobilization, for true worship motivates and mobilizes people for God. Throughout this course we will also look at what it means and how to worship, both in reverent and exuberant ways.

We will also discuss Revivals and take a look at the Biblical principles of revivals, what revival means and various examples.

Gift-Based Mobilization is also discussed through this course, which provides practical guidelines for taking a group of spiritually motivated people and actually mobilizing them in a practical way for the work of the ministry.

This course focuses on spiritual factors necessary to mobilize people for the work of the ministry. When you look below at the entire course Lessons and review their titles. Each of these lessons are a part of the mobilization process. If you understand and apply these principles of mobilization, you will be able to mobilize yourself and others around you.
